Distinguishing Features

6' tall with a solid build, WELLING is physically imposing. He favours stylish suits and appears to be affluent despite Wartime rationing. He wears his dark hair slicked back and tends to chain smoke.

Motivations

Known to colleagues as 'Vic', WELLING has a charismatic personality and is superficially well liked. However, his self-serving attitude leaves him with few real friends.

He is known to have a violent rivalry with another SSG operative, Barry CRYER, also ex-London Police. CRYER is suspected of working for the Richardson Gang, criminal rivals of the notorious KRAY twins.

Known History

Formerly Vice Unit of London Metropolitan Police. Demonstrates extensive knowledge of the London underworld and holds valuable contacts. However, rumours of corruption have persisted throughout his policing career, including suspicions of close association with organised crime heads Ronald and Reginald KRAY. Recommend close monitoring.

Shares SSG assigned accommodation with sole surviving dependent, his elderly mother, Ethel WELLING.

Opinion of Colleagues

Sgt Bill MCINTYRE: Soldier-boy, good in a tight situation, doesn't talk much. Worth keeping on the right side of.

PC Frank BURTON: A clean-cut boy scout and close friend of CRYER. If only he knew the truth about his pal.

Dr. Andrei TOMASCU: A Russian or something. How'd he get in SSG?

Carol ASTOR: A disgraced former SIS spy. Keeps herself to herself, not bad looking.
